

2023 Innovation under the microscope journalism competition

Quotes

“Geographic Information Systems technology has grown in recent years to become an essential tool for progressive government and business leaders confronted by an unprecedented number of unique challenges.” Esri Indonesia President Director Leslie Wong.

“The technology has been an enabler of change, assisting decision makers to explore new lines of investigation, and giving them a more informed view of a variety of situations.” Esri Indonesia President Director Leslie Wong.

“We have seen how the ingenuity of GIS technology professionals has underpinned the digital transformation strategies of some of the world’s most progressive organisations.” Esri Indonesia President Director Leslie Wong.

“In observing the efforts of our local GIS community, I believe we are witnessing efforts that will significantly reshape our nation - delivering answers to real-world issues that remain unchallenged by traditional solutions. Indonesia’s future is very bright in the hands of these extraordinary professionals.” Esri Indonesia President Director Leslie Wong.

“Data optimization is a priority for both government and industry in the digital era. The organisations recognized at today’s Awards program represent Indonesia’s future. These progressive institutions are applying geospatial technology in a manner that is literally nation-building.” Esri Indonesia President Director Leslie Wong.

“Our life's work here at Esri is to balance human-made systems with the natural world. It's the reason we make GIS technology and support our customers and partners in applying GIS to solving the world's problems. We recognize the seriousness of the climate crisis and we know full well that technology will be a crucial part of the solutions.” Jack Dangermond, Esri Founder and President.

“Esri’s vision for location intelligence is to help organization’s understand why things happen and when they happen with the goal of gaining business advantage through better understanding.” Jack Dangermond, Esri Founder and President, (The Forrester Wave Report 2018).

ENDS